Preface

After ten years of genealogical research, I have now completed "The History of the Lunt Family" which is intended exclusively for a Lunt genealogy, though a few others, (decendants of Lunts) have been inserted.

The name Lunt is supposed to be of Scandinavian origin, as the name is very common in Denmark, being spelled there Lundt. In this country the name is confined largely to the northern New England states, where in early times most of them were sea-faring people.

Henry Lunt came to Newbury, Mass., in the Spring of 1634-5 and was one of the original grantees of the Town, took the freeman's oath in 1638. He died July 10, 1662. Anna, his widow, married Joseph Hills, previously of Malden, Mass., but then of Newbury, Mass., on March 8, 1664. He was a lawyer (J. H.), of note, Captain of a Military Company, and the first speaker of the Great and General Court. He had been married three times before, his first wife being Rose Dunster, sister of Henry Dunster, (first President of Harvard College); his second wife being Hannah Mellow, (widow of Edward Mellow); and his third wife being Helen Atkinson. He died in Newbury, Mass., February 5, 1687-8. Anna, his widow, survived him many years. In his will he gave to his wife Anna the household goods, which were her former husband's, also bequeathed to her cows, sheep, etc., besides land from his own estate; and to Daniel Lunt, her oldest son, his brass stilyards; to Henry Lunt his back sword. This Henry was probably her youngest son, who was a military officer according to the inscription on his gravestone, which is still in the burying ground of the First Parish of Newbury, Mass.

It was my intention to have several engravings, in my book, but, to keep the price of the book in reach of all interested, they had to be omitted.

The reason that I have short sketches of some people, and none of others is that some filled out the forms more fully than others.

In a work of this kind it is almost impossible not to make errors in dates, as conflicting dates from persons of the same family were sent me, and doubtless my book contains such errors.

The burning of all the records of Bath, Me., in 1837 and of Portland and Falmouth, Me., July 4, 1866, have made it very hard to trace some of the lines, as a great many Lunts settled in that vicinity about 1700, and therefore all data regarding these families were lost.

I wish to extend my thanks to one and all who in any way aided me in compiling this work; especially Mr. Orrington Lunt Comings, of San Francisco, Calif., Mrs. Nellie O. H. Elwell, of Biddeford, Me., Mr. Hiram A. Lunt, of Frenchboro, Me., and Miss A. A. Humphreys, of Newburyport, Mass.

T. S. LUNT.

In May, 1774, Ezra Lunt announced in The Essex Journal and Merrimack Packet, a newspaper printed in Newburyport, Mass., of which he was part owner and publisher, that a coach drawn by four horses, would leave Newburyport for Boston every Monday morning, and returning leave Boston for Newburyport every Thursday morning, as follows:

STAGE COACH,

That constantly plys between Newbury-Port and Boston, sett's out with four horses every Monday morning at seven o'clock from Newbury-Port, and arrives at Boston the same day;—Leaves Boston every Thursday morning and reaches Newbury-Port the same day.

Such Ladies and Gentlemen as want a passage from Newbury-Port to Boston, are desired to apply at the house of the Subscriber, opposite to the Rev. Mr. Parson's meeting-house. And those from Boston to Newbury-Port, at the house of Mrs. Bean, in King street.

It is hoped this very expensive undertaking will meet with encouragement from all Ladies and Gentlemen, as they may depend on the punctual performance,

Of the Public's most obedient, humble Servant,

EZRA LUNT.

At the breaking out of the Revolutionary War, he sold his horses, carriages, and stable fixtures, and enlisted in the Continental Army, where he immediately rose to the rank of captain. He commanded a company at the Battle of Bunker Hill, after which he re-enlisted in the Continental Army and commanded a company under Col. Moses Little at Long Island and in New Jersey.

In Shay's Rebellion he had command of a company that marched from Newburyport, Mass., and served for several months in the western part of the State of Massachusetts.

At the close of war he was granted an innholder's license by the selectmen of Newburyport. He leased a dwelling house, near the corner of Federal and Water streets, which he occupied as a tavern for several years.

In 1789, or a year or two later, he removed to Ohio, where he died in 1803.—Currier's History of Newburyport.

Mrs. E. Vale Smith in her history of Newburyport, published in 1854, page 86, says: "The Rev. Jonathan Parsons having made an appeal at the close of one of his sermons in which he called on his hearers to form volunteer companies, invited those to walk out into the broad aisle who would do so. Mr. Ezra Lunt was the first to come forward; others followed and a volunteer company was immediately formed with Ezra Lunt as captain. His was the first volunteer company formed for the purpose of joining the Continental Army."

Henry Lunt enlisted in the navy at the beginning of the Revolutionary War. He was first a member of the crew of the ship Alfred, 440 tons register, (which was purchased in August, 1775, by a committee chosen for that purpose by the continental congress), and of which John Paul Jones was first lieutenant. When John Paul Jones was given command of the sloop-of-war Providence, he took Henry Lunt with him. They sailed from Newport to New York and then sailed from there on the fourteenth of June, 1776 on a cruise which resulted in the capture of sixteen vessels. The Providence arrived in Newport in October, 1776, after a four months' cruise, and Henry Lunt probably returned to Newburyport previous to the first day of November. He sailed November fifteenth with his kinsman Cutting Lunt, in the brig Dalton, from Newburyport, and was captured on the twenty-fourth day of December by the Reasonable, an English frigate, carrying sixty-four guns. He was subsequently confined, with the rest of the crew of the brig, Dalton, in the Mill prison at Plymouth, England for more than two years. He was released in March, 1779, with more than one hundred other prisoners and taken in a cartel-ship employed for that purpose, to Nantes in France.

He then sailed as master's mate on the Bon Homme Richard with John Paul Jones, and on the nineteenth of May was ordered by Commodore Jones to proceed to Dinan and enlist some American seamen "recently arrived there in the cartel from England." Soon after that date he was appointed second lieutenant. After a struggle with the Serapis, an English man-of-war, September twenty-third, in which Commodore Jones won out but lost his vessel, the Bon Homme Richard, he (Commodore Jones), transferred his men to the Serapis and arrived at the Texel in Holland on the third of October. Henry Lunt was not on board ship at the time of this struggle as he had been sent out just before, with fourteen sailors in a small pilot boat, to capture a collier in the offing, and was unable to return to his ship until the firing ceased.

On December 26, 1779, Henry Lunt sailed as first lieutenant with Jones on the Alliance and afterwards came with him in Ariel "a French ship-of-war in the United States service" to Philadelphia, arriving February 18, 1781 with a cargo of small arms and ammunition for the Continental Army.

Henry Lunt then returned to Newburyport after an absence of four years and three months in the service of his country, bringing with him the following certificate or letter of recommendation:

The bearer hereof, Mr. Henry Lunt, has served under my command on board the Continental ship, Bon Homme Richard. He was first employed by me as a midshipman at L'Orient, in the summer of 1779. He had been released from an English Prison by a cartel. I soon promoted him to the station of a second lieutenant, and he continued with me in that ship as such, and was afterwards with me in the ship Alliance from the Texel to France, and also from thence with me in the ship Ariel to this port as second lieutenant. Mr. Lunt has been with me in many trying circumstances, and has always behaved like a good officer, for which he has my best wishes. He had not the good fortune to be on board at the time of the engagement with the Serapis till the close of the action. He is included in the vote of thanks which I have been honored with by the Congress since my return to this country.

Given under my hand at Philadelphia, May, 1781.
CHEVALIER PAUL JONES.

- 764 Mary, b. Jan. 14, 1799; m. Silas Stearns, Jan. 5, 1826.

The identity of this Joseph is important as it makes for a Western branch of the family a connecting link which was sought for a great many years. Owing to the fire at Bath, Me., in 1837, which destroyed all public records, this connecting link was hard to establish. But I have established it by a process of deduction which every genealogist must employ sometimes, and which, I think, dispels all reasonable doubt, though I have no positive records. The church records of Newbury, Mass., show the baptism of this Joseph, Jr., son of Joseph and Sarah (Stickney), April 1, 1753, and then he disappears entirely from Newbury records. That he went to Bath Me., I have no proof,, but Miss Cornelia Gray Lunt, of Evanston, Ill., who possesses a genealogy of this Western branch of the family, obtained from the family Bible records the name of a Joseph Lunt, of Bath, Me., who was born Feb. 29, 1753, in Newbury, Mass., but owing to the destruction of the public records in Bath she could not trace this Joseph any further. As I have a complete record of all other Lunts who lived in Newbury, and as this is the only Joseph of that date who could fit this case, by process of elimination I determine that this Joseph must be the Joseph of Bath. The Joseph who was baptised April 1, 1753, must have been the Joseph of Bath who was born Feb. 29, 1753. Particularly as the names of the children in his (Joseph's) line repeat and perpetuate for several generations the names "Sarah," "Joanna" and "Joseph," as will be seen by referring to the genealogical numbers 46, 154, 157, 372, 373, 374, 756, 759, 761, 1440.

- 391 Abner Coffin<sup>6</sup> Lunt (Abner<sup>5</sup>, Abner<sup>4</sup>, Henry, Jr.<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Henry<sup>1</sup>), son of Abner and Miriam (Coffin); b. Oct. 2, 1752, in Newbury, Mass.

When about eighteen years old, Abner Coffin Lunt, went to Scarborough, Me., (Scarboro) in a coasting vessel, and married Elizabeth Hodgdon in 1771, daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Milliken). He lived in Scarborough about thirteen years; then he moved to North Fox Island, to a harbor called Bartlett's Harbor. He sailed from Scarborough June 2, 1785 and arrived at North Fox Island June 9, 1785, being four days from Black Point until he arrived at Bartlett's Harbor. Here he built a log house, living with William Banks while it was being built. He lived here 2½ years, cutting cord wood and farming; and also kept goods which he traded. He bought one-half of a sloop, about 70 tons and engaged in the coasting business and was cast away on Georges Island in a snow storm and it cost him $600 or $700 to repair the sloop, Industry. After a few trips, he hired a crew and when bound for Boston with a load of cord wood was run into by a schooner and sunk, everything being lost. He then bought part interest in the schooner, "Betty." which was to be paid for in cord wood, but owing to misfortunes he had to give the ship as part payment.

Then he sold his 262 acres of land on North Fox Island and took in part payment 150 acres on South Fox Island, where he moved and lived until Dec. 1, 1789, when he moved to Pretty Marsh, Mt. Desert, and bought 100 acres of land. He and his son, Amos Coffin Lunt, chopped a freight of cord wood that winter.

In April, 1790, he went to Rhode Island to collect notes due him and took his pay in live stock, oxen, cows, etc., which he drove to the shore and sold. With the money, he bought fishing stores and a schooner of about 20 tons and sailed for home, taking only one man with him, but coming around Cape Cod a heavy storm arose and drove them ashore so that he lost his vessel and all on board, the man who was with him being drowned. From there he went to Salem and shipped with Capt. Crosby to go to Penobscot River for salmon, with which he returned to Salem and then went back home in August, having been absent four or five months.

During his absence, his son, Amos Coffin Lunt, hired out for $40 a year to help support his mother and her five children. After his father's return, he went in a birch bark canoe to see him, returning to work until September, when his father (Abner) took him home.

Abner and his son Amos then hauled out about 50 cords of wood, which he traded for a small fishing schooner. Then he went to York's Island, near the Isle au Haut, where he built a log house and moved. During that winter he and his son chopped a freight of cord wood, went gunning and hunting and caught a number of minks, which brought about $67 each; also killed a number of birds.

He bought a two-masted schooner in 1791, in which he fished, caught considerable fish and made several barrels of oil from the dog-fish livers.

In April, 1792, he took off his flannel shirt and put on a fine linen shirt, dressed up, and went to Deer Island to sell his cord wood. While there he was taken with pleurisy and died, May 4, 1792, aged 39 years, 7 months, 2 days.

He was in the Revolutionary War and took part in the siege of Castine, landing the men from the ship Boston upon Castine Neck. He also had a commission and enlisted a company of soldiers and marched to Cambridge under Col. Vose.

A statement made by Capt. Lunt of his experiences during the Revolutionary War:

"At the age of (15) years, I shipped with Capt. Thomas Thomas, on the armed ship Vengeance in the expedition to Penobscot, and we were driven up the river by the British fleet; the ship was burned by order of the commander and on foot the crew found their way back to Massachusetts. I then shipped with Capt. William Knapp, on the armed brig, Pallas, from which I was transferred to one of her prizes, a British ship, with John Stone, of Newburyport as prize master. After having possession of her thirty days, we were captured by an English privateer schooner, said schooner held her prize twenty days, and was captured by a French frigate of 74 guns, and we were carried into Cadiz, in Spain, where I was liberated. I then shipped on the American armed ship, Count d'Esling, under Capt. Proctor, of Marblehead, Mass. When out 30 days we were captured by two English letter de Marque, called the Viper and Dick, and taken to Island of St. Kitts, and put into prison, where after a lapse of 60 days, I escaped, and with Capt. Green Pearson, of Newburyport, Mass., got to the Isl. of St. Eustatia. I shipped there with Capt. John Lee, of Newburyport, Mass., on the armed ship, Tom, bound for Newburyport, Mass. When out about 15 days we were taken by the British frigate, Gaudaloupe, and carried to New York, and put on board the hunter prison ship, and was confined there on the memorable dark day of May 19, 1780, from which I was exchanged, and sent to Boston, Mass., on a cartel ship. I returned to Newburyport, Mass., with Capt. Moses Brown, on the private armed ship, Intrepitt, carrying 20 12-pound guns, and stayed on the ship until the close of the War, 1783. The ship was owned by John and Nathaniel Tracy, of Newburyport, Mass."—E. Vale Smith's History of Newbury.

After the war, he went to Scarborough, Me., (Scarboro), and lived with his brother, Abner, about two years; returning to Newburyport, Mass., he shipped off in the West Indies trade, which afterwards he followed for many years. He built a number of vessels, and his oldest son commanded one of them when 18 years old. In the French War, a vessel of which he was master and part owner, was captured. He was part owner of the privateer, Dalton, that captured so many prizes. Children of Micajah Lunt born in Newburyport, Mass.:

THE NEWBURY BALLAD FOR 1634.*By Hon. George Lunt.

Mary and John, good pilgrim ship,
Be blessings on her name!
Her gallant flag, her venturous prow
And her stout oaken frame.

Of old, she brought our sturdy sires
The waste of water o'er,
Who left distracted English homes
For dear New England shore.

A court debased, a church corrupt,
The Nation's spirit fled.
Presaged what ills of potent dire,
Gloomed drearily ahead.

No vain perfection's unreached mark
Dazzled their steadfast eyes;
They felt they knew how brief, how frail
Was all beneath the skies.

And here those strong devoted sails,
By church and state oppressed,
Sought on these Newbury hills and plains
What earth could give of rest.

Choice of their father-land were they,
The choice of English wives;
Such men as oft on well-fought fields
For England gave their lives.

Well might the old divine (?) declare
Three kingdoms sifted through,
To find the seed, that planted here
This mighty harvest grew.

For never, since time's course began
Had pilgrims, bound like these,
Forever left their native shores,
To traverse unknown seas.

Such yeomen drew their battle bows,
As many a poet sings,
Such martyrs faced the fiery stake,
Such heroes vanquished kings.

One earnest hope, one strong desire
Fixed their firm hearts on high;
They kept their lives by faith's clear light
That showed them how to die.

Though scholars theirs from classic seats,
Oxford and Cambridge halls,
The fresh wild wood served all their needs,
For time-encrusted walls.
By holy pastors, spirit guides,
Their soul-sought food was given,
Where the untrodden wilderness
Seemed the next path to heaven.

They passed along from Ipswich hills,
They threaded Rowley wood,
Till now, where Newbury was to be,
By its lone stream they stood.

Sires with their wives and little ones,
In quaintest guise unseen,
Cleared the rough brake and led the way,
On the untrodden green.

Not even a lurking savage glanced
From the dark covert nigh,
No wrongs as yet had stirred his dread
Of such strange passers by.

Familiar names they bore, not lost,
 Kent (2), Barker (3), Moody (4), Pope (5),
 Franklin (6) and Tracy (7), Noyes (8) and Lunt (9),
 Sons of immortal hope.

But why recall the crumbled roll?
 Short (10), Woodbridge (11), Spencer (12), West (13),
 Bartlett (14) and Osgood (15), all their throng,
 Beneath their daisied rest.

In those rude huts though scant their face,
 What foes and fears to meet!
 Ere by the broad, blue Merrimac,
 They chose their pleasant seat.

Then rose their spires, beneath them grew
 That hardy, pious race;
 Men with all strength and spirit crowned,
 Women with every grace.

Long years, how long their course they kept,
 Their records answer well;
 How true their early promise stands
 Let other legends tell.

He was a large ship owner, manager and a successful merchant for forty years or more; was one of the foremost business men in Newburyport, Mass., having aided in other business enterprises undertaken to improve the conditions of the city, both by his capital and his personal services. Great confidence was placed in his judgment and ability, and he was highly valued for his integrity. He was called many times to fill many offices of trust and responsibility; he evinced no ambition for political or public life, but was once elected to the Legislature as Senator from Essex District. He held the office of president of the Marine Society for many years; was one of the earliest presidents of the Savings Institution; president of the Bartlett Steam Mills, and of the Merchants' National Bank; a director of the Eastern Railroad Co., and other corporations in this and other cities. (Newburyport Herald.)

He followed the seas for a great many years and in 1863, he commanded the ship George Griswold, which sailed from New York, with provisions, for the relief of the poor and destitute cotton spinners of Lancaster, England. On the arrival of the ship at Liverpool, the Chamber of Commerce presented an address to Capt. Lunt, acknowledging the gift, and subsequently held a public reception in St. George's Hall, where letters were read from members of Parliament, and appropriate speeches made, and presented him with a fine marine telescope, suitably inscribed. The fitting out of the George Griswold was one of the most unusual and noble events ever known in history at that time, and it was a lasting honor to Capt. Lunt to have given his gratuitous services to the command of that vessel. (Newburyport Herald, Sept. 6, 1879). Children born in Newburyport, Mass.:

Horace Lunt, son of Samuel Lyman and Hannah (Smith), b. March 17, 1838, was among the few of the original company who returned home safely after the war ended. He was in many battles, yet he was never wounded, but the long march from Virginia to Pennsylvania and back to the old fighting ground with the strain and exposure attending it, so affected one of his legs that it showed signs of failure and it has grown gradually worse up to the present time. He has walked only with the aid of crutches for some years. Mr. Lunt became a public reader after the war. He has been a student of nature all his life and word pictures of the forest, flowers, field and by-paths in his writings will cause feeling of delight in the heart of every reader whose childhood was spent on a New England farm. He is the author of two books, "Across Lots, the Wild Bee Hums" and "Cross Cuts and By-Paths." He is quiet and unassuming in manner, possessing a genial nature and is highly respected by all who know him. Mr. Lunt deserves well of his country and is an honor to the place of his birth.

He was a successful shipmaster and had retired from the sea a number of years, when he went to the East Indies to accommodate his former employers to bring a ship, whose captain had died out there, and on the passage home he died, and was buried at sea.

The Boston Journal of Commerce, in mentioning his death, says that no man ever had a higher ideal of the order to be maintained on board ship, and no man was ever better able to enforce his commands. With such men as Capt. Lunt, our Merchant Marine would equal the proudest navy of any country, in point of discipline. In every position to which he was called he showed remarkable capacity for work, and a spirit of endurance and fortitude under hardships such as is seldom seen. Whoever knew him could bear witness to his native strength of character, his high sense of honor and his strict uprightness in all his business affairs. Res. Lexington, Mass.

In November, 1842, Orrington Lunt and his wife went to Chicago, where he engaged in the grain business which he continued until 1862. In business he was an honest man in the strictest sense of the word—not only honest in his personal dealings, but he never tolerated dishonesty in subordinates or employes. To all northern Illinois his name is synonym for honesty of the most sterling quality.

He devoted much attention to railroad enterprises, particularly to the Galena and Chicago Union, of which he was a director from 1855 until it became a part of the Northwestern Railway Company's System. He was also interested in the real estate business and was quite active in municipal affairs.

When the great fire of 1871 laid Chicago in ashes, and reduced multitudes to want, his home on Michigan Avenue went with the rest, and with it went all the buildings from which he derived an income. But neither flood, war, fire nor famine could daunt him and he began amid the smoking ruins to lay foundations for the restoration of his own fortune, as well as the rebuilding of the Methodist churches.

In 1874 he and his family moved to Evanston, the site of which city he was actually the discoverer, as well as one of the founders.

Those who have only known him in these later years will find it difficult to appreciate at all fully the influences he exerted as a molding force upon not only early Chicago but the northwest as well. Rarely does it fall to the lot of one man to be equally wise in the council chambers and strong in executive action.

He was an important factor during the formation period of the civic, railroad, educational, church and business life of Chicago and all the country tributary to it during that period. His geniality was as proverbial as his sterling honesty. The wisdom of his counsels was eagerly welcomed in all the varied interests connected with the growth of the northwest. Places upon boards of directors always came to him. He did not have to seek them, nor did he shun them, as he was ever ready to bear his share in doing anything that would develop Chicago and the country about it.

Hence his positions as director of the first railroad, as charter member of the board of trade, as official in the First Methodist church, and adviser in its church extension plans, which has aided the inception and growth of a score of other churches, as a member of the "Board of Defense" when the Civil War broke out, and as cherished friend and adviser of President Lincoln and as one of the originators and builders of the Clark seminary, Garrett Biblical Institute and Northwestern University. He was preeminently a builder and withal one whose conservatism was only watched by his steady, persistent push in everything he undertook.

The association of his name with a new project became almost a guarantee of its success simply because people knew that it was honest in inception and would be honestly administered.

But the crowning activity of his public life was that in connection with the Northwestern University and the Garrett Biblical Institute, to which he gave more affection and gratuitous service than any other man who has been connected with them. The Orrington Lunt Library standing on the campus is an architectural gem due to his generosity. Although in failing health he was able to be present at the dedication of the library in 1894 and read his address of presentation.

Although he was most widely known for his prominence in Methodism and in educational matters, yet his name was familiar to early Chicagoans as one who stood high in business circles.
